

Make life better for birds.

By planting flowers and shrubs that are native to our country, we are catering to native birds while avoiding any problems with invasive species. Variety is key. Not only will birds feed on the plants themselves, but the more kinds of plants we introduce, the more species of insect they will attract, and the more birds we will see feasting on this delicious variety of buffet. Pesticides will kill off birds, natural prey and poison the food chain, so instead, let the birds act as natural pest control. When we find helpless birds outside of their nest we put them back in their nests. We installed bird boxes in our surroundings. We feed the birds with nuts and grains. We arranged small open water pots to drink and bathe. We stick some bird feeders to windows. Every day we clean up little. We say no to one-use plastic, We teach birding our children. We enjoy feeding birds and balancing nature as well.
